

7 Natural Laws For Maximum Productivity

1 The law of IDENTITY

We reap in kind what we sow. If we do good things for others, others we will always benefit. If we sow discord, anger, or resentment that is what our harvest will be.

2 The law of INTERVAL

We reap later what we sow today. If we do something good today, make good choices, or practice great habits today we will reap our reward at some point in the future. Too many people who do good today expect to be rewarded today. In most situations this will not happen.

3 The law of INCREASE

We reap more than what we sow. As farmers plant seeds of corn and expect to get thousands in return, we can also expect to sow one small seed of goodness and in due season reap thousands of times the harvest.

4 The law of INVESTMENT

We reap in direct proportion to what we sow. If we plant a thousand seeds, we will reap a thousand times more harvest than if we plant only one seed. If we invest 50% of returns into something, will receive at least 10 times the results of a 5% investment.

5 The law of INVOLVEMENT

To us, to be successful we must be involved. We who are involved will show what we value. Our long-term reward in life will always come from those things in which we are involved.

6 The law of INHERITED PARTICIPATION

We all receive a great deal of benefit from those who have invested into our lives and the lives of others in the past. We need to appreciate and be grateful for the investment of others and we need to invest into other's lives.

7 The law of INTERVENTION

We have all made choices in the past that we are not proud of or that are bringing bad consequences for us today. We need to let go of the past, look toward the future, and start today practicing the "7 Natural Laws For Productivity" which will help us reach beyond our dreams in every area of our lives.

Synergy would like to thank The Life Masteries Institute for assisting in the research and discover of natural laws and principles that help individuals "Reach beyond their dreams in every area of their lives."
